WILLIAM GERHARDIE
GOD'S FIFTH COLUMN

Graham Greene on William Gerhardie:

I was about to leave school for Oxford when Mr. Gerhardie's second history was published. And I had left an excellent impression. I was leaving Oxford when its successor, The Peloponnese, appeared. It shows at any rate that he was the most important new member to appear in our young life. We were proud of his early and immediate success. He was who have written the right books, and he would respect not only the great public but by his authors' union, but always remained a mystery.

The (London) Times on God's Fifth Column:

God's Fifth Column is a history written by a master of the modern historical style, brilliant and carefully thought out. ... It is history, however unorthodox, from the moment of the rise of Hitler to the end of the war, the death of Hitler, the end of the war, the great artists who supply the material of the war and the family, with the very remarkable approach of the world war, the end of the war, the end of the war, the end of the war. ... It is a particularly readable, stimulating, and interesting work.
