

- A news report should have a headline, date, place of origin of the news.
- It must contain the byline/name of the reporter.
- It must contain only relevant information.
- The newspaper report must have appropriate language for a report.
- It must contain a logical development of ideas, i.e. causes/reasons, effects or consequences.
- It must include the opinions of people and it should be comprehensive. It should contain views of all sides involved.
- Personal pronouns are to be avoided.

Format:

A newspaper report consists of the following elements:

Headline:

Every news article has a headline to attract the attention of the reader. The headline must state the topic of the news in a strong, short phrase or statement.

A headline must be:

- catchy
- brief-articles, prepositions, etc. must be left out wherever possible; abbreviations and shortened word-forms may be used wherever required

Byline

Since this is your news article, you need to let the reader know who wrote it. The line with your name on it is called the 'By' line because it tells by whom the article is written. Write the word 'By' followed by your first and last name.

Lead Paragraph

A lead paragraph usually answers the questions: Who, What, Where, When, Why. The report usually begins with the name of the city where the report is being written and the date when it is being written.
