Looking for European Union in the World-System Laurent Beauguitte, 2010 The European Union EU is often considered at least in Europe as a key actor in a globalized world The aim of this presentation is to check the relevance of this perception which sometimes seems too Eurocentric to be honest We used methodological tools coming from Social Network Analysis density centrality measures subgroups and regular equivalence in order to produce a relevant partition of the contemporary world and to check if an entity called European Union appears or not This multigraph analysis is based on two databases one regarding world trade from 1967 until today CHELEM database the other one deals with United Nations General Assembly voting behaviour The first step is to create blockmodels inside these valued matrices without any a priori regarding regional groups and to see if when and how EU appears The second step takes the EU existence for granted and compares linkage densities within this group compared to other regional groups like ASEAN or MERCOSUR The last step is to integrate both partitions and to highlight the cores of the system If an integrated European Union clearly appears from an economic point of view the situation is much more contrasted from a political point of view Despite this balanced conclusion the relevance of these methodological tools clearly appear for both economic and political geography

The New World Architecture Jose Magone, 2017-07-28 The collapse of the bipolar world sustained by the United States and the former Soviet Union led to a power vacuum in the 1990s that the European Union has only reluctantly begun to fill It is under pressure to take over important international tasks and roles in order to develop a new equilibrium in the system of international relations After 2000 reforms were undertaken so that the European Union could deal more efficiently with the tasks the new political system had acquired since the early 1990s With respect to its international role reorganization of the EU's external relations department was high on the list The New World Architecture explores the contribution that the European Union is making to the emerging global governance system It discusses the theoretical and historical aspects of European integration within the framework of the emerging regional EU and global governance systems It explores three regimes of governance that are contributing to holding together the new emerging EU multilevel governance system None of these is complete all are partial They include the political regime of governance the socioeconomic regime of governance and the territorial regime of governance The author assesses the impact of the European Union on global politics The Mediterranean and Latin America represent regions in which the European Union is investing considerable effort in order to create new forms of cooperation Magone argues that within the next twenty five years global governance may and should emerge as the new and reconfigured stable system of international relations In this system the European Union is and will remain the most advanced regional system This volume will be of interest to specialists scholars and students of European Politics and the European Union

The European Union in the World-System Perspective (Evropeiskii Sojus I Budushaja Mirovaja Sistema). Arno Tausch, 2007 The process of European Union eastern enlargement involving the Luxemburg and the Helsinki groups of candidate countries was positively accomplished in 2004 But what next and with what effects for world society after the eastern border of the Union will run from Estonia in the far North of Europe to the shores of the Black Sea Former Austrian Chancellor Dr Wolfgang Schüssel for example spoke about a membership perspective of up to 40 states in a perspective of 30 or 40 years involving the countries of ex Yugoslavia the Ukraine Turkey and the states of the Southern Caucasus Die Presse 20th October 1999 On the 28th of August 2001 we heard the Belgian Foreign Minister and EU Council President for the second half of 2001 saying that there is an EU membership perspective for Russia in the long run as well Die Presse 28th of August 2001 EU Council President Belgium's Foreign Minister Louis Michel deems it to be possible that Russia could perhaps become at a not too distant date an EU member quot Because Russia belongs historically and culturally to the European spacequot It is evident that such a very profound enlargement of the European Union would fundamentally alter the landscape of world society It is shown in the article in detail that Europe suffers from a considerable technological backwardness vis a grave vis the U S Russia which after years of a Kondratieff depression is still a large scale technological power would be the natural partner of Western Europe in a still closer technological cooperation European capital and Russian technology could benefit tremendously from each other not to mention such sectors as energy and human capital in an evolving pan European economic space and a European social model that would finally overcome the development cleavages that opened up in the world economy since the long 16th Century and that marginalized the European Orthodox East
