

FAMILY LEGACIES

Decide what you'll keep:

You probably have things you received that are wonderful and need to be kept and passed on. Other things may need to be thrown out. Or, perhaps you have a weak legacy that needs strengthening.

Whatever you received, you can now intentionally pass along the good. This isn't always easy. If you saw hypocrisy in your parents' lives, you may be tempted to throw everything out even though much of what your parents modeled was good. Don't. That would be like burning down the house to get rid of some bugs.

Realize that there is a being who can redeem even the "bad stuff" in your legacy. Unfortunately many of us have parts of our legacy that are weak or even awful. Maybe one of your parents was an alcoholic or abusive or didn't provide the nurturing you needed. In today's society, the stories of such families are common. You may be asking, "How do I give something I didn't receive? Nobody modeled this stuff for me."

Family Legacies:

Family Money, Family Values, and Your Family Legacy. Raymond D. Loewe,2013-09-18 You can leave a legacy without the money and you can leave money but no legacy When most people think about leaving a family legacy they think about wealthy people leaving lots of money to their children and grandchildren But a family legacy doesnt have to be just for the rich The less well off and even the not so well off can leave a family legacy too Too often the creation of a family legacy is aimed at reducing estate taxes and perpetuating wealth for future generations Although these are certainly worthwhile goals they often have the unintended effect of creating future entitled generations which can actually be a disservice to those individuals But this need not happen There are numerous opportunities to create positive good works through the vehicle of a family legacy The key to a well designed family legacy is to have a clear sense of purpose as to its intended use Instead of starting with the money first ask yourself these questions What really is my legacy to my family What are the values I want my children and grandchildren to learn from me Then ask yourself How do I use my money to perpetuate my legacy
