Factual Writing J. R. Martin,1989 This book describes the different types of writing that are used as tools of communication in the adult world and compares the writing tasks that teachers set for their pupils and the ways in which they measure success By analyzing the different skills required within the school context and the outside world Martin suggests how the education process could become more appropriate to the needs of the individual

RELC Journal ,2000

Private, the Public, and the Published Barbara Couture,Thomas Kent,2004-05 At the 2003 Rock the Vote debate one of the questions posed by a student to the eight Democratic candidates for the presidential nomination was have you ever used marijuana Amazingly all but one of the candidates voluntarily answered the question Add to this example the multiple ways in which we now see public intrusion into private lives security cameras electronic access to personal data scanning and wandering at the airport or private self exposure in public forums cell phones web cams confessional talk shows voyeuristic reality TV That matters so private could be treated as legitimate in some cases even vital for public discourse indicates how intertwined the realms of private and public have become in our era Reverse examples exist as well Around the world public authorities look the other way while individual rights are abused calling it a private matter or officials appeal to sectarian morals to justify discrimination in public policies The authors of The Private the Public and the Published feel that scholarship needs to explore and understand this phenomenon and needs to address it in the college classroom There are consequences of conflating public and private they argue consequences that have implications especially for what is known as the public good The changing distinctions between private and public and the various practices of private and public expression are explored in these essays with an eye toward what they teach us about those consequences and implications

Writing Ourselves Into the Story Sheryl I. Fontaine, Susan Hunter, 1993 The twenty three selections in this volume are essays research studies and personal narratives by the silent majority in composition studies teachers and researchers with viewpoints that Sheryl I Fontaine and Susan Hunter note are often voiced in private conversations but seldom printed in scholarly journals or aired at professional conferences Rather than focusing on the traditional categories of pedagogy and research Fontaine and Hunter organize the essays into four sections the invisible pedagogue of the discipline the model of power that dominates composition the ever present but seldom heard student voice and other voices excluded from professional development in composition studies Contributors discuss the barriers they face as teachers of being overwhelmed by the reality of some of their students lives Essayists raise questions about teaching practices that are sometimes homophobic and the effects on gay and lesbian students of the canonization of mainstream heterosexual texts They probe the exploitation of untenured part time faculty second class professionals whose work is not taken seriously by their colleagues

Negotiating the Interactional Contexts of an Intermediate-level College Writing Classroom Jeffrey A. Wiemelt, 1995

The Development of Scientific Writing David Banks, 2008-12 This book is one of the first applications of a functional approach to language across time It first summarizes and evaluates previous studies of the development of scientific language including Halliday s exploration of this fascinating topic

Emergent Literacy William H. Teale, Elizabeth Sulzby, 1986 This book is about young children and their writing and reading development during their first few years of life It stops at the point where most books on beginning writing and reading start when the child is 5 6 years old and is able to write and read in ways recognized as actually being writing and reading The chapters are authored by many of the leading researchers of written language development in very young children

Learning and Teaching Genre Aviva Freedman, Peter Medway, 1994 This collection examines academic genres types of writing produced by students in secondary school and college from the perspective of genre as social action Such a perspective expands the understanding of what students do when they learn new school genres of what teachers and institutions do to enhance and constrain such learning and of what all this signifies for conceptions of writing pedagogy The book begins with an overview of the reconception of genre study The essays that follow have an interest in genre particularly those that appear in educational settings as instances of either student reading or writing Common motifs recur throughout questions are raised concerning learning and teaching new genres the ideological power of genres read and written and the power of the teacher curriculum planner or student to invent new genres or to resist and subvert those that exist Throughout the contributors give detailed accounts of successful classroom practices Learning and Teaching Genre brings recent developments in research and thinking about written genres to the attention of high school and college teachers and illustrates how that work can effectively inform classroom practice Language Issues ,2000 The Transition from Classroom to Community Contexts for Writing Nora Anne Bacon,1997 In Search of Incipient Academic Writing Laura Dubcovsky,2003 Choice-Gased Writing in Managerial Contexts: Breaking the Company Rules Priscilla S.
