European Museum Guide 2002:

European Museum Guide 2002 A. B. van der Lans, 2002 Western European Museums and Visual Persuasion J. Donald Ragsdale, 2020-07-13 Western European Museums and Visual Persuasion is an assessment of the visual persuasiveness of art museums. It demonstrates that museums are as capable of influence as speeches or advertisements are and that an awareness of this influence provides an insight into museums' cultural roles. The book considers a diverse array of institutions ranging from such national cultural icons as the Louvre, the British Museum, and the Prado to museums of partisan advocacy such as the Centre Georges Pompidou, the Tate Modern, and the Museo Nacional Centro de Arte Reina Sofía. The museums' architectural significance, the importance of their collections, and the persuasiveness of their exhibition designs are the bases for assessment. Western European Museums and Visual Persuasion is an important extension of theories of persuasion and visual communication to art history and museology. It utilizes a theory of visual signs based on the semiotics of C. S. Peirce to demonstrate that museum buildings, the art within them, and the spaces used for display all may be thought of as ways of influencing society.

Living on the Lake in Prehistoric Europe Francesco Menotti, 2004-08-19 A survey of the history and current state of research on lake dwelling in Europe. Timed to mark the 150th anniversary of the beginning of the study of prehistoric lake dwellers.

The Public Image Of Chemistry Joachim Schummer, Bernadette Bensaude-vincent, Brigitte Van Tiggelen, 2007-10-17 Popular associations with chemistry range from poisons, hazards, chemical warfare, and environmental pollution to alchemical pseudoscience, sorcery, and mad scientists, which gravely affect the public image of science in general. While chemists have merely complained about their public image, social and cultural studies of science have largely avoided anything related to chemistry. This book provides for the first time an in-depth understanding of the cultural and historical contexts in which the public image of chemistry has emerged. It argues that this image has been shaped through recurring and unlucky interactions between chemists in popularizing their discipline and nonchemists in expressing their expectations and fears of science. Written by leading scholars from the humanities, social sciences, and chemistry in North America, Europe, and Australia, this volume explores a blind spot in the science-society relationship and calls for a constructive dialog between scientists and their public.

A Place in Europe Gabriela Petkova-Campbell, 2009 This book explores the origins and development of museums and heritage sites in Bulgaria, 1856-2006, in relation to societal change and major historic events. It seeks to determine the key factors that promoted museum building and pinpoint the key individuals who were involved. Original and archival sources, interviews, observations, and field visits have provided a rich dataset which has been analysed to reveal how systems of power, politics, and social control affected how museums were created and subsequently managed. Furthermore, the Bulgarian case is situated within a broader European context, and comparisons are made with the museum institutions in different countries in order to determine any specifics and particularities of Bulgarian museum building and operation. The book demonstrates how different administrations have used museums to promote their own political views of the nation's cultural identity and in particular how the strategies employed by the Communist regime continue to influence the museum sector today The major contribution of this book lies in its use of archival documents This has resulted in a different account of the formation of Bulgarian museums on some occasions contradicting accepted histories It also introduces the little known Bulgarian museology to a wider audience which is seen to be important at a point in time when Bulgaria has become part of the European Union
