Sustainable Development for Central and Eastern Europe Ulrich Graute, 2012-12-06 Central and Eastern European Countries are undergoing a difficult transition process with consequences for spatial development Europe needs a more balanced polycentric system of cities a new urban rural relationship parity of access to infrastructure and knowledge as well as prudent management and development of the natural and cultural heritage. Dealing with these complex challenges and the need for sustainable development, politicians require qualified advice from experts. To this end, the German Ministry for Regional Planning, Construction and Urban Development initiated the Network of Spatial Research Institutes in Central and Eastern Europe (CEE Net) in 1992. Exchange of knowledge and an open dialogue at all levels are preconditions for the cooperative development of visions and strategies serving spatial development in Europe. The annual conferences of the network have been a first step towards closer cooperation. The high interest shown in these conferences by academics and government representatives and the fact that several research projects have already crystallised out of the debates they engendered indicate that the network is meeting a need for exchange and cooperation. Decisions on spatial development do not stop at national borders and the discussion on spatial development in any European region has therefore to take the European context into consideration. A special advantage of this publication is that as well as focusing on spatial development and research in CEE regions it also discusses Central and Eastern Europe in a European context.

Rethinking European Spatial Policy as a Hologram Valeria Fedeli, 2017-03-02. Bringing together case studies from several European countries, this book provides an in-depth examination of the evolution of European spatial policy. Contributors focus on changes to the design and implementation of European policies at both national and local levels and examine institutional change, particularly Europeanization, European governance and EU enlargement. Rhetorical, discursive and representational dimensions are also interlinked to explore synergies and conflicts. The volume offers an experimentation of new interpretative approaches to spatial planning which will prove essential to the international debate. The Progress of European Spatial Planning Christer Bengtson, Kai Böhme, 1998. European Union Spatial Policy and Planning Richard H. Williams, 1996-05-28. EU Spatial Planning deals with the institutions, policy and instruments of spatial planning in the European Union and explains the logic behind them. This book is the product of many years' experience of teaching EU spatial policy. It is an informative manual to those who need to think European in order to operate professionally in the EU. EU Spatial Planning concentrates on the powers and institutional structure of the EU, the emergence of a Europe-wide spatial policy, the EU's role in regional, environmental, transport and urban planning, the practical aspects of operating professionally in Europe, the prospects for further policy development. ### Cohesion, Coherence, Cooperation: European Spatial Planning Coming of Age?

Andreas Faludi, 2010-10-18 Since its foundation the European Union has gradually developed policies that are aimed at achieving increased economic and social cohesion This book examines the most recent of these the concept of territorial cohesion Territorial cohesion is the pursuit of balanced development competitiveness sustainable development and good governance These concerns are most readily addressed by the formulation of spatial strategies under the umbrella of spatial planning that brings together a multitude of public and private actors in a process that requires cohesion coherence and co operation This book traces the development of spatial planning at European level and argues that spatial planning can become a vehicle not only for territorial cohesion but for EU policy generally
