God Of Continuing Creation

Bruce Barber, David Neville

God Of Continuing Creation:

The God of Continuing Creation Douglas E. Wingeier, 2004 An undated series of short term studies published four times a year Each study begins with life issues and concerns and explores how the interaction between learner and Scripture informs these issues and concerns The relation of these issues and concerns to personal communal and societal expressions of faith will also be explored Each study will have seven sessions and the leader materials will be interspersed with the main texts they refer to The targeted age is 35 55 This first study is a Bible Survey on the theme of Creation To see another group study offered by Cokesbury go to the Adult Bible Studies website

A Theology of Power and Privilege Joseph Caldwell, 2024-08-22 A Theology of Power and Privilege makes the bold assumption that it is possible to develop an antiracist theology within a constructive evangelical theological method It examines Black Liberation Theology's claims of embedded racism within White theological systems and then asks both if Reformed North American Evangelicalism evidences racism within its theology and if so how might that be addressed biblically and doctrinally while remaining true to the theological essence of evangelicalism Along the way the author engages critically with an evangelical tradition represented by John Calvin Jonathan Edwards Charles Hobbs and Carl F H Henry and considers it in the light of the critique of James Cone Having identified racism within the theological tradition the author then offers a constructive evangelical theology of power and privilege that he accesses as truly antiracist In pursuit of this theological conclusion the author explores biblical texts on liberation subjection and obedience and applies his conclusions to constructive work on the Doctrine of God This is done within an evangelical hermeneutical methodology that privileges the biblical text This book will be of interest to evangelicals who are engaged in debates around race racism and social justice either theologically or historically and theologians generally interested in the application of hermeneutics to theological method It will also be of interest to anyone regardless of tradition as a guide to how white theologians can take seriously the contributions and value of the Black intellectual tradition to their work

God's Creativity and Human Action Lucinda Mosher, David Marshall, 2017-09-14 A record of the 2015 Building Bridges Seminar for leading Christian and Muslim scholars this collection of essays explores the nature of divine and human agency through themes of creation's goal humankind's dignity and task and notions of sovereignty Part I sets the context for the book with Human Action within Divine Creation A Muslim Perspective by Mohsen Kadivar of Duke University and On the Possibility of Holy Living A Christian Perspective by Lucy Gardner of Oxford University The rest of the book includes paired essays one from a Muslim perspective one from a Christian perspective that introduce scriptural material with commentary to aid readers in conducting dialogical study In her conclusion coeditor Lucinda Mosher digests the illuminating small group conversations that lie at the heart of the Building Bridges initiative conversations that convey a vivid sense of the lively penetrating but respectful dialogue for which the project is known This unique volume will be a valuable resource to scholars students and professors of Christianity and Islam

Lectures on the History of Christian Dogmas August Neander, 1888      Moral and Methaphysical Philosophy Frederick Denison Maurice, 1886      Causality and Mind Nicholas Jolley, 2013-11-28 Causality and Mind presents seventeen of Nicholas Jolley's essays on early modern philosophy which focus on two main themes One theme is the continuing debate over the nature of causality in the period from Descartes to Hume Jolley shows that despite his revolutionary stance Descartes did no serious re thinking about causality it was left to his unorthodox disciple Malebranche to argue that there is no place for natural causality in the new mechanistic picture of the physical world Several essays explore critical reactions to Malebranche's occasionalism in the writings of Leibniz Berkeley and Hume and show how in their different ways Leibniz and Hume respond to Malebranche by re instating the traditional view that science is the search for causes A second theme of the volume is the set of issues posed by Descartes innovations in the philosophy of mind It is argued that Malebranche is once again a pivotal figure In opposition to Descartes Malebranche insists that ideas the objects of thought are not psychological but abstract entities he thus opposes Descartes dustbin theory of the mind Malebranche also challenges Descartes assumption that intentionality is a mark of the mental and his commitment to the superiority of self knowledge over knowledge of body Other essays discuss the debate over innate ideas Locke's polemics against Descartes theory of mind and the issue of Leibniz's phenomenalism A major aim of the volume is to show that philosophers in the period are systematic critics of their contemporaries and predecessors

A Treatise on Jonathan Edwards, Continuous Creation and Christology S. Hamilton, 2017-11-07 Jonathan Edwards 1703 1758 is one of the most important thinkers of the Christian Tradition Ironically little is known about his Christology Lesser still is that which is known about the philosophical commitments that undergird much of thinking about the God man In A Treatise on Jonathan

Edwards Continuous Creation and Christology S Mark Hamilton shows that Edwards has much more to say about the nature of the person of Christ that is both significant and original than has been believed to this point Hamilton s Treatise tackles Edwards unique understanding of the God world relationship and how that understanding bears upon his doctrine of the person of Christ Equal parts philosophical clarification and theological construction and offering a number of truly original insights Hamilton makes the convincing case that Edwards commitment to the idea that God somehow creates the universe out of nothing every moment does not as some have hitherto supposed imperil his commitment to an orthodox Christology In so doing Hamilton puts forward a reconstruction of a controversial aspect of Edwards Christology that will undoubtedly provoke both a deeper appreciation and closer examination of Edwards philosophical theology
