

The modernization of political institutions

In recent years several constitutional developments have helped modernise UK political institutions.

House of Lords Act 1999: removed from the Lords all but 92 hereditary peers and allowed for the introduction of more nominated life peers, including so-called 'people's peers'. It did not, however, allow for elected members of the Lords.

Constitutional Reform Act 2005: created a separate Supreme Court, which became the highest court in the land. It replaced the Law Lords, who, as their name implies, sat in the Lords. It therefore generated a greater sense of judicial independence and separation of powers.

House of Lords Reform Bill 2012: proposed that a reformed Lords should comprise 80% elected members and just 20% nominated, removing hereditary peers completely. The Bill was abandoned after 91 Conservative backbenchers voted against it.

Succession to the Crown Act 2013: enabled the eldest child of the monarch to ascend to the throne irrespective of gender, although it only applied to royal offspring born after October 2011. It also allowed an heir who married a Roman Catholic to retain their right of succession to the throne.

House of Lords Reform Act 2014: gave existing peers the right to resign or retire from their seats in the Lords, as well as enabling the removal of peers convicted of serious criminal offences or non-attendance. By early 2020, six peers had been removed for non-attendance, including the businessperson Baron Wolfson in 2017, and 106 had retired, including Lord Lloyd Webber, who also left in 2017, and former Liberal Democrat leader Lord Steel, who left in early 2020.

Greater Democracy

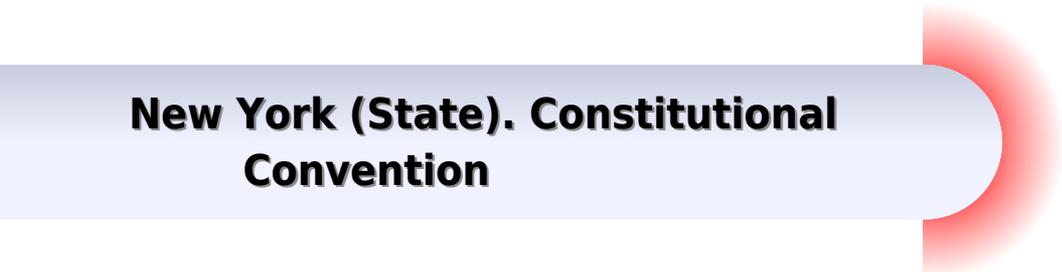

Referendums (Scotland and Wales) Act 1997: allowed referendums to be held in Scotland and Wales over the creation of devolved assemblies. 'Yes' votes in both countries, although by a very slim margin in Wales, meant that devolution could now take place.

Greater London Authority Act 1999: allowed for the setting up of a directly elected mayor for London. The Local Government Act 2000 contained provisions for elected mayors in other cities following local referendums.

European Parliamentary Elections Act 1999: changed the electoral system for European Parliament elections in England, Wales and Scotland from first past-the-post to a form of proportional representation- the regional closed list system.

Constitutional Amendments Richard Albert, 2019-07-15 Constitutional Amendments Making Breaking and Changing Constitutions is both a roadmap for navigating the intellectual universe of constitutional amendments and a blueprint for building and improving the rules of constitutional change This book blends theory with practice to answer two all important questions what is an amendment and how should constitutional designers structure the procedures of constitutional amendment

The process of constitutional change Great Britain: Parliament: House of Lords: Select Committee on the Constitution, 2011-07-18 The constitution is the foundation upon which law and government are built Yet the United Kingdom has no agreed process for constitutional change The Committee does not accept that the government should be able to pick and choose which processes to apply when proposing significant constitutional change It therefore recommends in this report the adoption of a clear and consistent process These recommendations are not intended to restrict the government's right to initiate constitutional change but to hold ministers to account for their decisions The Committee regard it as essential that prior to the introduction of a bill which provides for significant constitutional change the government considers the impact of the proposals upon the existing constitutional arrangements subject the proposals to detailed scrutiny in the Cabinet and its committees consult widely publish green and white papers and subject the bill to pre legislative scrutiny The Committee looks at these processes in this report as well as considering the desirability of public engagement and building consensus Also the importance of not rushing parliamentary scrutiny of legislation once introduced into Parliament and of conducting comprehensive post legislative scrutiny of significant constitutional legislation once passed Also recommended is the minister responsible for a significant constitutional bill in each House set out the processes to which a bill has been subjected in a written ministerial statement This comprehensive package from which the government should depart only in exceptional circumstances and where there are clearly justifiable reasons for so doing The Committee believes this approach is pragmatic and achievable enabling the flexibility of the United Kingdom's current constitutional arrangements to be retained whilst enhancing and underpinning those arrangements

Time for a New Constitutional Change Richard Holme, Michael Elliott, 1988-11-04 A group of essays many given at the annual Scarman seminar run by the Constitutional Reform Centre in 1987-88 and now published to coincide with the tercentenary of the Glorious Revolution and the Bill of Rights re-examining the principles and practice of the constitution since 1688

Constitutional Reform and Brexit Gary Wilson, 2023-06-30 This book examines the extent to which Brexit has impacted upon the operation of the British Constitution prompting in turn consideration of how some of the factors which contributed to the outcome of the 2016 referendum as well as the event of Brexit itself might inform debates surrounding constitutional reform moving forward The work seeks to make sense of the constitutional implications of Brexit and to revisit some of the key debates that have taken place in respect of particular constitutional reform proposals in order to assess the extent to which recent Brexit related developments inform the perspectives which are taken upon their merits and prospects The book is divided into two parts The first provides some context for the substantive treatment of the potential impact of Brexit on constitutional reform debates which forms the focus of Part II Part II centres on various specific constitutional reform themes or issues which are explored further within the context of Brexit For each such issue the main parameters of the debates which have taken place are sketched out before moving on to consider how it has informed or may come to be informed by the phenomenon of Brexit By so doing it looks to some future directions for constitutional reform which take account of the factors driving the discourses which gave rise to the referendum outcome and subsequent developments as well as offering meaningful responses to these The book will be of interest to academics researchers and policy makers working in the areas of constitutional law constitutional politics philosophy and history
