as mobile technologies are used end users can adapt the technology on their own and add technologies without the support of the formal developer or local government The thesis also identifies opportunities and challenges of ICT enabled co production Examples of opportunities include citizen volunteers having a high degree of engagement being an effective complement to professional responders and increasing perceived safety in the community This informal structure of co production enabled by ICT minimizes the need for local governments to spend resources on managing collaboration Examples of challenges include the lack of organizational affiliation of volunteers e g integration of citizen volunteers i e end users with non organizational affiliation in the technology of the ICT system and aspects of formal and social control regulation and moral and privacy issues The thesis s contributions include enriched knowledge of essential aspects to consider when developing ICT enabled co production with an end user perspective and an understanding of the transformation of the application domain over time and the implications of ICT enabled coproduction This makes it easier to comprehend and develop contemporary and future co productions The thesis is perceived to have high originality and value since it studies time periods in which local government technology and crisis and emergency response have undergone dramatic changes and explores one of the first Swedish empirical initiatives involving citizen volunteers as responders
