Scientific Inquiry Cycle: Review

Science helps communities solve problems by applying knowledge and inventing things. Often "solved" with a local "fix" such as water recycling or waste management, using science to make or improve solutions can have a positive impact. Understanding the problem fully, including its causes and effects, is the first step in finding an effective resolution.

Designing solutions becomes considering various constraints, such as budget, time, and safety concerns. Sometimes, important parts of a solution might be hard to change, so it is important to weigh these trade-offs carefully. For example, creating materials for a house that may affect its cost and ease of use, cannot influence the effectiveness of the solution.

After identifying a solution, determining how it works, what constraints affected it, and any compromises that have already been or should be made on the idea. Communication, using design models, and reflecting on the results of the solution are important steps. The process of testing, sharing, and evaluating locally encourages responsible decision-making and helps communities thrive.

 - Determining what the solution has no costs
3. Which is an example of a trade-off?
- Finding a solution with no costs
 - Using expensive materials
 - Knowing how to avoid
 - Using unsafe materials
4. Why is communication important?
- To avoid not being in agreement
 - To make ideas clearer
 - To finish the problem by comparing
 - To avoid discussing the work

6B. Mark if the statement is True (T) or False (F).

1. A solution made after one failed attempt is always better than the first one.
