

Guide to Fundamentals of Contract Law

Contract law is a legal area that governs the creation and enforcement of agreements between two or more parties. The following are some of the fundamental principles of contract law:

Offer and acceptance: A contract requires a valid offer and acceptance. One party must make an offer to enter into a contract, and the other party must accept that offer.

Consideration: Consideration is the benefit that each party receives or is promised to receive under the contract. For example, if you pay someone to perform a service for you, the consideration is the payment you make, and the service they provide.
