Scientific Inquiry Cycle: Review

Science helps communities solve problems by developing knowledge and creating things that "solve" with a local focus such as water quality or waste management using science as a basis or improve solutions that have a common impact. Understanding the problem fully, including its causes and effects, is the first step in finding an effective solution.

Designing solutions requires considering various conditions, such as budget, time, and safety concerns. Sometimes, important parts of a solution might be challenging, expensive, or too important to weigh their trade-offs carefully. For example, creating materials for a house that may affect its cost and ease of use, cannot influence the effectiveness of the solution.

After identifying a solution, determining how it works, what conditions affected it, and any compromises that have already been or should involve on the way. Communication, using design models, and reflecting on the results of the solution are important steps. The process of testing, sharing, and evaluating locally encourages responsible decision-making and helps communities thrive.

6A. Mark the best answer for each question.

1. What is the first important step when working on how to solve a local problem?
- Thinking of a solution immediately
 - Using the most expensive materials
 - Ignoring safety concerns
 - Understanding the problem fully
2. What does determining trade-offs in a solution help with?
- Ignoring the concerns of the community
 - Establishing a consensus that is safe and viable
 - Showing how to avoid trade-offs
 - Determining that the solution has no risks
3. Which is an example of a trade-off?
- Finding a solution with no trade-offs
 - Using materials that are safe and cheap
 - Using materials that are safe but expensive
 - Using unsafe materials
4. Why is compromise important in a solution?
- It allows you to learn from the process
 - To make ideas stronger
 - To avoid the problem from continuing
 - To avoid choosing a trade-off

6B. Mark if the statement is True (T) or False (F).

1. A solution made after one failed attempt is always better than the first one.

Answer for each question.

1. How does identifying a solution help in the scientific process?

2. Why must trade-offs be considered in designing a solution?

3. What might happen when creating a trade-off?

4. How might science solutions be implemented?

5. Why are trade-offs essential in scientific understanding?
